CALL BEFORE YOU DIG! It's Free & It Could Save You A Costly Repair Bill

Spring is a great time to get started on those outdoor projects, but before you break ground on a home addition, fence, swimming pool or landscaping project that requires excavating or digging, make sure you're clear of all underground telephone lines.

State law requires anyone starting to dig or excavate any project to call in advance to locate any possible underground utility lines.

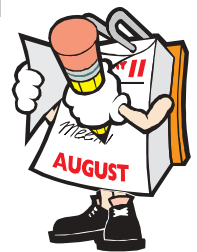

Call the One Call Hotline at 811 or (800) 632-4949 at least 48 hours before you start your digging projects so that we can send a representative to locate and mark your telephone lines. This service is free and you can save yourself a costly repair bill by calling us before you start your project.

Call before you dig. It's easy, it's free and it's the law. ☐

Instant Messaging (IM) Is A Great Way To Contact Someone & Get A Quick Response

In today's fast-paced world sometimes e-mail is just not fast enough. That's why instant messaging (IM) has become so popular with so many people.

What is IM? It is a form of real-time online communication between two or more people based on typed text. Using IM allows you to talk to another person instantly. This capability is the main difference between e-mail and IM. With IM you also can see if the person who you want to send a message to is online at that particular moment and cuts out much of the time involved in writing, reading and responding to an e-mail.

Additional advantages for using IM include improved communications in the work environment. Employees can set an "online status" so that co-workers will know whether you are available or not. You can also save an IM conversation and refer to it at a later date.

One thing to keep in mind is that IM is not considered a completely secure way to communicate. So any highly confidential information should not be disclosed when using an IM service.

Most programs that are needed to use IM are usually free and can be easily downloaded from the Internet. □
